Born in the New York area of the USA, Steven Wilson was recruited into the US government when his psionic powers manifested in his teens. As time passed he became more and more opposed to what the US government did to maintain its power. This got him into trouble many times, and eventually agents of the government came for him. He fought his way out, a lucky shot destroying his left eye, and escaped. He wandered the world for a number of years before meeting and being recruited by the Psionic Resistance. Since then he has worked loyally for the Resistance, proving himself again and again and gaining something of a reputation among those in the know.

Steven is in his early 40's. He has a medium height and build, usually wears an eye patch and has dark hair, which is starting to recede and go grey. He has a fairly distinguished, 'respectable' look about him.

He knows more about Michael Ravenwood (Warlock) than others in the party, namely that he was brainwashed into performing many of the actions he did. For this reason he does not regard him as harshly as others in the group.
